SAARC Cultural Centre is the SAARC Regional Centre for Culture and it is based in Sri Lanka. It was established by the Governments and Heads of States of the SAARC Countries to promote cultural cooperation within the Region, to enhance cultural understanding and harmony amongst the people of South Asia and to share the distinct cultural identity of South Asia with the world.

The Centre functions as an important focal point for the artistic communities of the eight Member States of Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. The Centre promotes Regional understanding and harmony through Cultural and Research Programmes, brought about with a view to inspire individuals and groups of Artistes, to partake in varied and diverse activities and events encompassing the multifaceted realm of the Arts. It aims to create an inspirational and conducive environment, to meet and exchange their inter-regional creative visions and promote deeper discussion and analysis. In its view to be as inclusive as possible in its outlook and artistic vision, the Centre explores all forms of art, that of Performing Arts such as dance, music, drama, theatre, puppetry and folk culture; Visual Art such as painting, sculpture, film making, photography, and Literature reflecting the vision of the SAARC Agenda for Culture.

The Centre also encourages and invites further analysis and exploration through its publications on varied topics from the South Asian Diaspora to Traditional Knowledge and Cultural Expression, Sustainable Development and Tourism. In its quest to share the value and depth of South Asian Heritage freely with the world at large, it continues to foray into the realm of publications and research and the Centre will endeavour to make all publications available online on its website: www.saarcculture.org

The SAARC Cultural Centre is a part of SAARC, the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation, created with a vision to build and further promote understanding between the eight countries of the South Asian Region. Eight countries which are already inherently bound together in a richly woven tapestry of shared history and heritage brimming with warm hearted people, fertile lands, a myriad of colour and its very own and unique beauty, art and culture.
MESSAGE FROM THE HON. PRIME MINISTER

South Asian Association for Regional Corporation (SAARC) constitutes a grouping of South Asian nations that have joined together to promote economic development and regional integration.

SAARC Cultural Centre which is committed to forge the concept of unity within diversity has played a key role since its inception in promoting cultural cooperation through the dynamic form of cultural exploration, namely the SAARC Film Festival.

The SAARC Film Festival is unique in opening up new ventures in the film industry with particular emphasis given to some of the pressing social, cultural and political issues facing the region. The event will also encourage film makers to continue producing quality, thought provoking and representational films for the region.

Most importantly, I relish the prospect of promoting friendship and understanding within the industry in South Asian Region. It is my fervent belief that workshops and forums incorporated into the festival will enrich cinematic creations to unprecedented levels. I wish the SAARC Film Festival which is being held for the 9th consecutive year in 2019 every success.

Ranil Wickremesinghe
Prime Minister

20th June 2019
Message from the Minister of Foreign Affairs

Message on the Occasion of SAARC Film Festival, Organised by SAARC Cultural Centre in Colombo, Sri Lanka, 2019

It is with great pleasure that I convey my warm felicitations and best wishes to the SAARC Cultural Centre in Colombo for the successful hosting of yet another SAARC film festival in Sri Lanka.

The inception of SAARC brought with it the hope and aspiration of unity and prosperity in the region that is diverse in culture, ethnicity and religion. At the Thirteenth SAARC Summit held in Dhaka, it was reiterated that people of South Asia are the real source of strength and the driving force of SAARC, and cultural cooperation and people-to-people contact were identified as the impetus that promotes these objectives. It is with much appreciation that I acknowledge the contribution a SAARC film festival makes toward promoting connectivity, goodwill and understanding of the common cultural heritage of South Asia, among nations of the region.

On this positive note, allow me to express my appreciation to all the SAARC member countries for coming together to celebrate the unique culture and lifestyle of South Asia through the SAARC film festival.

Tilak Marapana, PC, MP
Minister of Foreign Affairs
It gives me great pleasure to issue this message on the occasion of the 9th SAARC Film Festival to be held in Colombo from 02 to 07 July 2019.

Cinema in South Asia has a long standing history and South Asian Cinema has been applauded and recognized globally. The region has produced a number of excellent films, and there is no doubt that screening of South Asian Films during the festival will undoubtedly bring people closer together and foster understandings of our cultures, beliefs and traditions. Despite the fact that commercialization has clouded that many ethos of South Asian Culture, the best films of the region still do maintain high standards in capturing the true heritage of the South Asian Region. Film has the power to provide a window into a new world, a release from everyday drudgery. It gives an opportunity to experience the different cultures, traditions and life-styles. The SAARC Film Festival is an ideal opportunity that would bring together the cultures of the region and provide an opportunity to the people to experience such cultures through the film.

I congratulate the SAARC Cultural Centre for taking the initiative in giving prominence to South Asian Cinema. I wish the film festival success.

Sajith Premadasa, M.P.
Minister of Housing, Construction and Cultural Affairs
Message from the Secretary-General of SAARC

MESSAGE

I wish to congratulate the SAARC Cultural Centre for organizing the Ninth SAARC Film Festival in Colombo.

This Festival conforms to the directive of the Eighteenth SAARC Summit that all possible measures may be taken to preserve and promote the South Asian cultural identity.

Cinema is a modern form of universal communication that can transcend the barriers of conventional diversities. A quality film can entertain a wide variety of audiences, regardless of their cultural, religious, and ethnic backgrounds. Through Festivals such as this, we can learn more about our neighbours in the region and realize that there are more things uniting us than what divides us. At the same time, these events play an important role in the development of the film industry in South Asia.

As the world of entertainment is continuously evolving, the regional film industry must keep up with the changes. I hope the Festival can espouse a meaningful discussion on the challenges facing the film industry and how to address them. If we are to promote quality film production in the region, we must ensure that the industry gets adequate support from all concerned. We can also do more to ensure that regional films attract a wider audience in the region.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the esteemed Member States for their nominations to this Film Festival. I also wish to congratulate all those associated with the films nominated for this Festival.

I wish to commend the active role being played by the SAARC Cultural Centre in promoting the South Asian cultural heritage, including through organization of events as this Festival.

I wish the Ninth SAARC Film Festival-2019 great success.

Kathmandu, 20 June 2019

(Anjum Khan B. Sial)
It is with great pleasure that I issue this message to celebrate the “SAARC Film Festival 2019” being held for the 9th consecutive year organized by the SAARC Cultural Centre.

Film making is a powerful form of art in the present world and the SAARC region has a rich tradition of cinema. The best aspect of films is the ability to create meaningful social connections through a shared experience. Filmmakers and Artistes express their imaginative, conceptual ideas and it becomes a powerful vehicle for culture and education.

The SAARC Film Festival is one of the most important cultural events keeping in line with SAARC’s main objective of promoting cultural cooperation amongst the Member States. Films can be enjoyed and appreciated by all regardless of the cultural, religious or ethnic diversities. The SAARC Cultural Centre is committed to develop the concept of “Unity within Diversity” through this dynamic form of cultural exploration.

The Film Festival 2019 is proud to showcase a variety of feature films, short films and master films whilst continuing the tradition of bringing wider recognition to South Asian films. In addition to the screening of Films, there will also be a workshop with international experts, which will serve as a platform to share experiences and knowledge and initiate a meaningful discussion on the challenges facing the film industry.

This year we have received submissions from all eight SAARC Member States and the Film Festival will showcase the unique talents of the Filmmakers and Artistes in the SAARC Region. Thus, the Festival will promote regional unity through cultural exploration and integration and contribute towards preservation, conservation and protection of South Asia’s cultural heritage through the medium of Cinema.

On behalf of the SAARC Cultural Centre, Sri Lanka I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to the Honoured SAARC Member States, Film Directors, Editors, Cinematographers and Artistes for the diverse submissions. I would also like to thank the staff of the SAARC Cultural Centre and all others who assisted in numerous ways to ensure that the SAARC Film Festival 2019 is a successful and remarkable event.

Synopsis

“A Letter to the President” tells the story of a young woman named Soraya who is sentenced to death for murdering her husband. To save her life, she writes a letter to the President. And the President, after reading her story in her letter, realizes some untold facts about her case. The film revolves around Soraya, a mother of two, who tries to balance her career as the head of the Kabul Crime Division and her life as the wife of a very rich but on the verge of alcoholism husband, who, additionally, is dominated by his gangster father. The already crumbling balance ends when Soraya decides to save a woman who is being accused of adultery and is actually sentenced to death by the village elders, and in the process defies the man in charge of the area, Commander Essmat Khan, who happens to be an associate of her father-in-law. The repercussions are huge and violence ensues in Soraya’s house, in a series of events that lead to her killing her husband and her subsequent imprisonment, facing the capital punishment. The only thing that can save her is a letter to the President and the efforts of Behzad, an associate who is in love with her but manages to make things worse when he expresses his feelings through an exhibition of his paintings.

Roya Sadat

Being passionate about producing films and considering restrictive atmosphere during the Taliban regime in her country she started writing scripts for plays and movies. In 1999, even during the Taliban regime, she wrote and directed a play for a theater show for a group of Afghan women. After the Taliban regime came to an end, she started making films and her first feature film as a producer and director was “Three Dots”, known in Afghanistan as “Se noughta”, or “Ellipsis”. She made this film in less than two weeks, in a digital video format. The film, though not a quality product, still gave an exposure to the western audience on the status of women in Afghanistan.
Synopsis

A special commando unit was set up within the Afghan army to fight against the Taliban and other violent militia. Filmmaker Alka Sadat, who as a woman had to obtain permission from the mullah before shooting among the troops, records everyday life in the Afghan commando camp and follows the men on their dangerous, often nocturnal, missions. These military operations, for which the soldiers are constantly on standby, contrast starkly with the everyday routine of the camp. Whistling, a soldier fixes his hair at the bathroom mirror; outside, men are playing volleyball and messing around with the pigeons, which coo loudly in the otherwise mouse-still surroundings. In the cramped dormitory, soldiers play board games and flip channels from a singer to Barack Obama, who is announcing the withdrawal of American troops from Afghanistan. Sadat also places the men individually in front of her camera, where they reticently talk about their loves, their families, the opportunities of the modern age and their big dream of a secure future. Everything is punctuated by the recurring orders and helicopters arriving to drop the soldiers into some unfamiliar area, where they have only two options: kill or be killed.

Alka Sadat

Alka Sadat is an Afghan documentary and feature film producer, director and cameraman. She became famous with her first 25-minute film “Half Value Life”, which highlights social injustice and crime; the film won several awards.
Synopsis

The film shot in the rustic backdrop of Afghanistan, depicts the struggle of a young boy who sells match boxes for his living. An orphan with no home or shelter, he sleeps under a tree and his only possession is a basket in which he carries the match boxes. The film takes through the emotions of this boy who is fighting his loneliness and his scuffle with fate when his basket of match boxes is stolen.

Khadij Hussain Byhname

Khadij Hussain Byhname was born into a cultural family in Ghazni / Afghanistan in 1993. His interest in cinema led him to filmmaking. He is now a fourth-year student in Kabul University. He has established the “Image of Thought” group and has made 9 short films in three years. His films have been screened in the domestic and international film festivals and received awards.
Synopsis

This film is about a mother whose husband has left for work in Iran since a year and a half. He has not sent her any money ever since and she earns a living by washing clothes which is not enough for her rent or food. Unable to earn for her basic needs, she sells her marriage clothes which are the cherished memories of her husband. As the title of the film suggests she is a single mother and depicts her struggles to pay the rent of her house and buy bread for her daughter. The film closes with the protagonist sitting with a group of girls, and she gets a letter written from one of them addressing to the Afghan Human Rights. In the letter she expresses her distresses and puts forward her request to bring back her husband.

Aqila Farahmand

She is a student at the Regis University and a film maker from Afghanistan.
Synopsis

The film is set around a young girl with a docile and calm nature, who emigrated to Slovakia from Afghanistan. It is a common notion that displacement has the power to make one feel out of their depth and this fact is portrayed in the film. In an Afghan and Slovakia co-production Light Breeze is about the memories of an Immigrant Girl, Sahraa Karimi weaves a screenplay around her own experiences in a new country. Through poems and notes in her diary, the protagonist depicts her innermost feelings as an immigrant.

Sahraa Karimi

Sahraa Karimi, is a prominent filmmaker in her own right. She has more than 10 years of experience in the field and has directed more than 30 films. She is the only woman from Afghanistan to have earned a doctorate in cinema. She co-founded a multimedia house and their films are mostly about civil rights issues faced by women in war-torn Afghanistan. Her feature film “Afghan Women Behind the Wheel” has received some 25 awards from major film festivals around the globe. The film she made as part of her doctoral studies, “Light Breeze,” won the Slovak National Film Award.
BANGLADESH
Synopsis

Language is a right. ‘Spring Breeze’ states the importance of language for presenting the cultural heritage, harmony & peace. In present globalization, every language is transforming fast. Many of the languages of different ethnic (tribal) people are dying and it is necessary to preserve the language in diverse culture. ‘Spring Breeze’ is a movie in that context set in a small southern town of Bangladesh, it symbolically depicts the exploitation, suppression and the quest to preserve the mother language. The Antagonist wants to seize the mother tongue but realizes he cannot even control the tongue of a bird. ‘Spring Breeze’ speaks in favor of presenting and practicing mother language, thus to preserve the diverse cultural tapestry of the world.

Tauquir Ahmed

Tauquir Ahmed is born in 1966. He is an architect, actor, writer and filmmaker. He started his career in theatre and later he has made six feature films. His present occupation is filmmaking, writing and acting. Having received his academic theatre and film education from reputed universities of New York, UK and South Korea, Tauquir is well known for his theatre and films in Bangladesh and abroad. His films beginning from “Joyjatra” in 2004 followed by “Rupkothar Golpo” in 2006 and “Daruchini Dwip” in 2007. His “Oggatonama” won the Best Screenplay at the 7th SAARC Film Festival and his “Halda” won the Best Feature Film in the 8th SAARC Film Festival held in Colombo.
Synopsis

A ship of the British colonial age is stuck at the sand-bed. Passengers in this ship are a deceased body of a female worker, the fled owner of the garment factory, a poet cum herbal practitioner, a blind singer, a recent rich family, a young girl with her own fancies, two unemployed young guys, a magician and a host of people from all social backgrounds. The orange rocket as if is a mini Bangladesh and in it some people remain imprisoned. Within this imprisoned state, different human instincts and crisis start being unveiling. Different levels of hunger, poverty, lust, deception and empathy get unfolded. At a stage, as if the deceased body of a female worker becomes a character. Hunger makes the aristocratic encounter with the poor people. The deceiver, the owner of the garment factory encounters a new reality.

Noor Imran Mithu

Noor Imran Mithu was born in 1983. Inspired by Satyajit ray he took to film making as a mode of expression. Gradually Andrei Tarkovsky, Emir Kusturica and Nuri Bilge Ceylan widened this cinematic vision. Noor Imran is a graduate of Sociology from Khulna University. With close observation of the Bangladesh rural life he made his directorial debut with “An orange ship”. He has researched for this film for about two years and shoot the film for one and half years.
Synopsis

Mona is an extremely simple young man who, during an impoverished childhood, came from Myanmar to Bangladesh to seek work at the age of twelve. He has since been employed as the housekeeper of an unsavory businessman. The miserable living conditions of the Rohingya (refugee community) who have taken shelter in Bangladesh since the 25th of August, 2017 have made Mona thoughtful. Despite his master's strict orders to keep away from the Rohingya, Mona often goes to the refugee camp. There he brings joy to the small children, playing with them and often helping them pick up their relief goods. After a series of events, Mona ends up marrying a Rohingya girl, in the hope of offering her a better and safer life. But the couple is unaware that the law of 2014 has long declared it illegal for Bangladeshis to marry Rohingya; indeed, such a marriage is considered a criminal offense. Will Mona be able to dodge the police and smuggle his Rohingya wife out of the camp to take her to a village and start a new life? Will they succeed in starting a quiet, peaceful life?

Noman Robin

Noman Robin's films are courageous, as is his selection of themes. Developing his work on the basis of real-life experiences, Noman provokes his audience to think twice. Noman Robin is one of the most successful and popular TV-fiction makers of Bangladesh. His selection of realistic stories has made him highly popular. His first full-length feature film “Common Gender - The Film” was exhibited at the 70th Golden Globe in 2012, and a year later at the Journalism and Genetic Science sections of several universities around the world. This film has influenced Bangladeshi society so strongly that transgender people are now officially recognized as the third gender in their passports and national ID cards.
Synopsis

A bold and wise mom in the city of Dhaka, who, despite being a successful professional, stays incomplete inside the ‘family’, somehow or other. She keeps her struggles closely guarded under her silence and some things finally revert some other way that spells out a newer gravity of motherhood and womanhood.

Chaitali Somadder

Chaitali Somadder graduated from the Asian Film Academy, Busan, Korea and Post-Graduate Diploma in Editing from the Satyajit Ray Film & Television Institute (SRFTI) of Kolkata, India. Synopsis

Alpha is a painter who lives in a subaltern abode built on bamboo pillars under which flows polluted sewage water. Alpha undergoes spells of trances in which he sees visions of surrealistic journeys revealing his abnormal mindset, he is loved by all his neighbors for his compassionate nature. Deep within alpha has a rare obsession for aesthetics and he paints figures of demigoddess (partly female and partly god). One night alpha discovers a floating dead body of a man in the sewage water stuck under his dwelling place. Alpha’s life topples over. This one floating dead body changes alpha’s existence as he knows it.

Nasir Uddin Yousuff

Nasir Uddin Yousuff has directed over 200 teleplays and produced around one thousand fiction, non-fiction and education programmes. From 1972 until 2016 he gave directions to 23 stage plays which received high accolades both at home and abroad. Some of his films include “Ekattorer Ishu” (Jesus 71), “Guerrillia” and “Alpha”, which he loves to define as “the most modern film.” Nasir Uddin Yousuff has conducted a number of national and international workshops, presented papers and attended conferences too. From 1983 until now he received 22 awards, both of national and international repute. Nasir presently teaches in the Film in the Department of Theatre & News Media at Daffodil International University, a leading private university in Bangladesh.
Synopsis

The story begins in the havoc of affairs, probing the missing gem of powerful Dzongpoen, in an exclusive Bhutanese tradition of astrological art. For the overriding time, Ya Mae-a phony astrologer who is considering to be a renowned astrologer, is appointed to seek out the gem, locked inside the palace and shattered his life thereafter. The reviving of the gem as the plot, the film signifies that there is a similarity in life as to how good deeds fetch good results and the bad ones result in a disaster.

Kinga Kinley Tshering

As certified Script writer, he has written scripts for most of the Bhutanese block buster movies such as “Saye Lhama”, “Nga Kinley Choegi Super Man”, “Zhu Dha Ghema”, “Tsip Choelo”, “A Woman of Pure Heart” and continues with the script writing to promote the National Language Dzongkha and overall development of Bhutanese Values which impact the growth of social values and Bhutanese culture and tradition. As a Director, he visualizes the morale from a Bhutanese context in every movie he directs to prove the significance of Bhutanese values and traditions.
Yethro is the only child born in a rich family and she leads her life like a queen. Phuentsho is an orphan who works for Yethro's parents and he owns nothing but his only companion Mindu, the horse. Phuentsho is an archer and soon Yethro falls in love with him. Namgay and Phuentsho are best friends, Namgay is always there to help him out and he too works for Yethro's parents. After a brief friendship Yethro and Phuentsho are separated as Yethro's parents arrange her marriage with another rich man's son from their village. Unhappy with the separation from Phuentsho, Yethro ends both of their lives by consuming poison.

Synopsis

Set in a small town in coastal Konkan region of Maharashtra, the story is about beliefs that we all come across when deciding what is right and, what is wrong? Pashya (Prasanna), and Aseem are two young boys (10-12-year-old) in a small town. Pashya’s father (Mahadev Gurav) is a priest in the local temple. Pashya, however, is little rebellious. Aseem, a son of a butcher (Aabir), though, is the scholarly one and loved by everyone. These contrasting personalities make them closest of friends. After witnessing an event in the town, a ritual performed in the name of God which involves sacrificial killing of a goat, boys begin their quest of finding the reason behind why something is good and some things are not! What is the value of being good? How ‘virtues’ are created? As the boys start discovering the things behind it, they come with their own set of principles for the holy and the unholy! Their actions have different consequences than intentions.

Synopsis

From the psychoanalytic perspective, this is the story of unmet desires and other pertaining core issues. When the protagonist's husband goes to the Gulf leaving his wife along with his paralysed father and infant daughter, the strongest support of her life also goes away. While she continues hoping that he comes back one day, the hope gradually fades after he stops sending money around two years later. Day by day, the frequency of his phone calls wanes, and this makes the woman increasingly feel abandoned and betrayed. Also contributing to her fear is her workplace where a colleague abuses her. These circumstances collectively lead her to an unconscious desire for a 'substitute', which she later finds in a random guy wandering around her station. But, as psychoanalytic theorists say, the unconscious, the storehouse of unfulfilled desires, never dies; hence nothing or no one can quench people's desire for the original source of happiness.

Short/15 mins/ Nepal
The story follows a thirty-year old overly religious and superstitious man-child named Hari. He has led his whole life following the rules that were set by his ancestors and his strict religious widow mother. Leading a monotonous life at home and office. His life takes a sudden change when one day a bird craps on him, to his dismay he doesn't know if it is a pigeon which is a sign of good luck or a crow which happens to be a bad omen. As his day continues, he experiences both good and bad, which confuses Hari. All these events start to veer Hari onto a new path where he finds love and desires, he didn't know he had before. Hari is a man who hasn't ever thought for himself but rather just obeyed everything that was told by his mother, his boss, his staff and everyone in his life but as events unfold Hari takes a stand and takes chances and savors his freedom. All this however comes with a price, as the good, will always come with the bad.

ENAMUL HQUE SOHEL (BANGLADESH) FOR HALDA

BEST SCREENPLAY
“It’s a ‘triumph of the spirit’ story with compelling and accurate narration of true events that project the hardships of climbing Mt. Everest.”

PRASHANT PANDEY & SHREYA DEV VERMA (INDIA) FOR POORNA

BEST ORIGINAL SCORE
“For its beautiful conversion of traditional Bangladesh music into contemporary flavor.”

TAUQUIR AHMED, PINTO GHOSH, SANZIDA MAHMOOD NANDITA (BANGLADESH) FOR HALDA

BEST ACTOR
“For his depth, realism and sincere heart-felt portrayal of his character who gradually releases his emotion and connection to the corpse.”

MAHENDRA PERERA (SRI LANKA) FOR 28 (TWENTY-EIGHT)

BEST ACTRESS
“For her honest, innocent and realistic portrayal of a little girl who wants to rise above her situation.”

VAISHNAVI TANGDE (INDIA) FOR KSHITIJ (THE HORIZON)

BEST SHORT FILM
“By the presentation of cinematic language, the director is able to tell her story about the girl’s sacrifice for her grandfather.”
